

Chinese Spring Festival Gala

By Liying Zhang and Yan Li

Celebrating the Chinese New Year

On February 2nd, a Chinese Spring Festival Gala and China Day Activity were organized jointly by the Confucius Institute at Bangor University and the Chinese Students and Scholars Association (CSSA) in Bangor University. About 150 people took part in the activities. Professor John

Mr Min Sun, Third Secretary Education Section, Embassy of P.R.China, Professor Phil Molyneux, Dean of College of Business, Law, Education and Social Sciences, Bangor University, Dr Xinyu Wu, Director of International Education Centre, Professor John G Hughes, Vice-Chancellor, Bangor University, Prof. Liying Zhang, Co-Director of Confucius Institute at Bangor University, Mr Zhengwang Jiang, First Secretary Education Section, Embassy of P.R.China.

G Hughes, Vice-Chancellor of Bangor University, Professor Phil Molyneux, Dean of College of Business, Law, Education and Social Sciences, Bangor University, Mr. Zhengwang Jiang, First Secretary at Education Section of Embassy of the P. R. China, Dr. Xinyu Wu, Director of International Education Centre, Dr Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute, and Prof. Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Institute attended the celebration. Professor John G Hughes first wished everyone a happy Chinese New Year in his speech, and also referred to the Launch Ceremony of Confucius Institute 4 months ago, the future development of the Institute and its future work for the promotion of Chinese culture.

Chinese students from Bangor University played Chinese martial arts, hip-hop, Chinese folk songs and short sketch directed themselves reflecting the study and life of Bangor University students. Confucius Institute specially invited the performance group from Confucius Institute at London South Bank University to show the wonderful Chinese martial arts, Chinese folk music, Chinese folk songs and Chinese dances.

There was a short talk between the directors of the Confucius Institute at Bangor, Mr. Zhengwang Jiang, First Secretary at Education Section of Embassy of the P. R. China, Mr. Jiang Tao and Dr. Zhi Zhang from CSSA Birmingham and the colleagues from the Confucius Institute at London South Bank University when they had the chance to share ideas and discuss future cooperation.

1, Professor John G Hughes, Vice-Chancellor, Bangor University, delivering a speech.
2, Professor Phil Molyneux delivering a speech.
3, Dr Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute at Bangor University.
4, Yan LI, the new Chinese teacher at Confucius Institute participating in the activity the next day after her arrival at Bangor.
5, Student playing Chen Tai Chi.
6, Enthusiastic audience in the hall.
7, Ms Bei LI Dancing, teacher from the Confucius Institute at London South Bank University
8, Dr Zhi Zhang , President of CSSA Birmingham , Mr Zhengwang Jiang, First Secretary Education Section, Embassy of P.R.China. Prof. Liying Zhang , Co-Director of Confucius Institute at Bangor University, Dr Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute at Bangor University, Mr Jiang Tao, Secretary of CSSA Birmingham , Mr Chunwang Jia, chairman of CSSA Bangor.

The Chinese Culture Week in North Wales Special School by Confucius Institute of Bangor University Attract Media Attention

By Liying Zhang, Translated by GAO Jing

As part of the celebrating activities for the 2013 Chinese Spring Festival, the culture week in Anglesey Special School cannot be missed, because the activity is for seventy disabled kids aged from 5 to 19. The local media Daily Mail covers the three-day event. Anglesey Island is the British nearest island to Ireland. It might be new to you, but to British locals it's a hot tourist destination, just as Hainan Island to Chinese. Prince Williams and his wife Kate live on the Island and his helicopter squad are stationed there. From February 6th to the 8th, the Confucius Institute of Bangor University staged a three-day Chinese culture week for the kids in Ysgol Arbennig Ynys Mon - Ysgol Y Bont - Anglesey Special School. The activity is given great importance by the two parties: Prof. Liying Zhang, Co-director of the Confucius Institute, visited the school before the event to study the environment and the students' conditions. She also consulted with headmaster of the special school, and made a three-day activity with Ms Lowri Frewell, co-ordinator of the event. At the beginning of the event, kids showed to their Chinese teacher all kinds of things with Chinese elements that they had prepared, including plum blossom, handmade dragon, and paper snake for the year of the snake, which are all taught by Ms Lowri Frewell. Prof. Zhang introduced the customs of Chinese Spring Festival to the students and raised questions along the way, and to her happy surprise the students could answer most questions. Of course any correct answer would be awarded, so every time a question was raised, there were countless raised hands. A child who had great difficulty in walking came to the event by cab paid by the government. A person in charge told us that he wanted a national flag of China, and we found one for him. When we took pictures with him, he raised the flag with all his strength. And when we ate dumplings together, he tried very hard to use chopsticks and lifted one with the help of Ms. LI Yan, and all of us applauded for him.

Though we knew it would be hard to make dumplings, we still decided to do the job instead of buying ready-made dumplings, so as to give the kids an opportunity to experience how to make dumplings. It was even harder for the students of the special school: some could not hold chopsticks, and some couldn't nip the dumpling wrappers, but they participated with enthusiasm. On the last day after dumplings were made, we held a competition to pick dumpling with chopsticks. Several teachers also joined in under the invitation of the students.

The three-day event combined "action" with "quietness". "Action" covers Tai-chi quan, long fist, and fan dance. In the following days after the students learned how to salute in martial art, they often greet us with a martial art salute and a Chinese "nihao". Long fist should be practiced with shouts, and this was what the kids liked the most. Tai-chi required squatting, and the students would try very hard to do it regardless of their disability. Girls liked the fan dance best, especially a kid with sight problem. The pink color of the fan attacked her a lot, and she followed Ms. LI Yang closely to learn the dance.

The "quiet" part of the event included painting and calligraphy. We drew pandas and Beijing opera facial masks taught during the day. Many kids were quite gifted in painting and all kinds of pandas and facial masks appeared. Big kids liked calligraphy and when they were taught by Prof. Zhang, reporters of Daily Mail came and took photos. On the last day, master student in music from Bangor university PENG Yitong performed Gu'zheng, and many students walked up to try the instrument with curiosity.

When the three-day event was drawing to a close, people were still very excited. The students would greet us with Chinese "nihao" and martial arts salute. At the end Prof. Zhang issued certificates of the Confucius Institute to the students and asked them to stamp the certificate by themselves, and they couldn't wait to see Lowri writing their names on the certificates. The head of the school extended his gratitude to the Confucius Institute, saying that it was not easy to see that the children were so excited during the event, and hopes that we could come again. He wished all happy Chinese new year in Chinese.

1

1. At the beginning of the event, kids showed to their Chinese teacher all kinds of things with Chinese elements that they had prepared, including plum blossom, handmade dragon, and paper snake for the year of the snake, which are all taught by Ms Lowri Frewell.

2

It's a generalisation, I know, but when we have world beating technologies and world beating products we tend not to shout about it enough – we hide our collective 'lights' under the proverbial

2. They were learning Chinese Kung Fu. Long fist practiced with shouts was what the students liked the most.

3. The second from the left is Ms Lowri Frewell, the child in middle has great difficulty in walking and his came by cab paid by the government. He likes the national flag of China a lot.

4 Prof. Zhang taught Chinese Kong Fu to the students. Thought many students could squat, they tried their best to learn.

5. LI Yang taught fan dance to students. Actually the little girl could see far.

3

5

4

1

2

3

4

5

6

7

1,2. Students liked calligraphy best.

3, Pandas and Beijing opera facial masks were the Chinese elements that the students learned during the event, and they were gifted in painting.

4, LI Yang taught children how to stir dumpling fillings. The job is not easy to him, because he could hold the chopsticks with his hands.

5, It was no easy job for them to nip the dumpling wrappers and put the fillings inside.

6, LI Yang helped students with holding difficulty to eat dumplings with chopsticks.

7, Eat dumplings game.

8, These two students made two red lanterns with their own efforts.

9, Master student in music from Bangor university PENG Yitong performed Gu'zheng, and many students walked up to try the instrument with curiosity.

10, At the end Prof. Zhang issued certificates of the Confucius Institute to the students and asked them to stamp the certificate by themselves, and they couldn't wait to see Lowri writing their names on the certificates.

11, Ms Lowri Frewell. Prof. Zhang.

8

9

10

11

The Mayor of Bangor of North Wales greeting a Happy Chinese New Year in Chinese!

By Liying Zhang and Yan Li

Group photo with the Mayor of Bangor City, from left to right: Ms Yan Li, Chinese teacher at Confucius Institute, Dr. Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute, Member of Parliament Bryn Hughes, the Mayor of Bangor and his wife, Professor Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Institute and Mr. Andrew Lui, Headteacher of North Wales Chinese

Confucius Institute at Bangor University has been opened officially at September 2012. During the Chinese Spring Festival of 2013, Confucius Institute has organized series of wonderful celebration activities lasting for two weeks. On February 12th 2013, the third day of the Chinese Lunar New Year, a Chinese New Year Party was held jointly by the Confucius Institute at Bangor University and the North Wales Chinese School at Rathbone, the building of International Development of Bangor University. Member of Parliament Bryn Hughes, the Mayor of Bangor and his wife, Professor Dermot Cahill, Head of the Law School at Bangor University, Mr. Andrew Lui, Headteacher of North Wales Chinese School, Dr. Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute, and Professor Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Institute attended the celebration. More than 150 people took part in the activities, including several colleagues from the Business School, the Media School, the Law School and the Modern Languages School at Bangor University, enthusiasts keen on Chinese culture and economy from the legal profession, the business community and the education sector of Bangor, as well as teachers and students from North Wales Chinese School.

Member of Parliament Bryn Hughes, the Mayor of Bangor was invited to deliver a speech first. MP Bryn Hughes felt very happy that the Chinese New Year Party this year was held in Bangor. Since Bangor was a University City, the Chinese New Year celebrations had been usually carried out in the city of Llandudno nearby with more residents. And because of the cooperation with Confucius Institute at Bangor University, the Chinese New Year Party of 2013 was moved to Bangor. During the conversation with Professor Liying Zhang, Co-Director of Confucius Institute, MP Bryn Hughes was deeply gratified by the Confucius Institute's efforts to spread Chinese culture in Bangor and indirectly enhance the influence of Bangor City through various activities. Therefore MP Bryn Hughes specially learned a "Happy New Year" greeting in Mandarin from Ms Yan Li, a new Chinese teacher from Confucius Institute who had just arrived for ten days, and he wished a better future for Confucius Institute in his address.

Professor Dermot Cahill, Head of the Law School at Bangor University made a speech on behalf of Bangor University. Prof. Dermot had put a lot of effort for the construction of Confucius Institute. Without his help, there couldn't be a significant expansion of Confucius Institute office space from 2 small rooms to the much larger premises of 6 offices, 1 meeting room, 2 50 square meters' big classrooms, a kitchen, a bathroom and a small storage. In his speech, Professor Cahill spoke about the huge interest there has been in the cultural events run by the Institute since its inception last September, and he drew the audience's attention to the upcoming programme of events which will take place during 2013, including a Kite flying Festival; an exhibition of Mervyn Rowe paintings of Chinese landscape scenes; the delegation of local School Principals which the Institute is organizing to travel to China and other cultural events including calligraphy, Tai Chi, etc. He encouraged the audience to keep in contact with the Institute and he hoped to see many of them at the Institute's programme of 2013 events during the coming months.

Dr. Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute couldn't help recalling his PhD time at Cambridge in his speech, and he said the atmosphere of the New Year Party made the feeling of home come back to him again. Professor Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Institute expressed her thanks to the parties who had supported Confucius Institute a lot. She said that our Confucius Institute was officially launched on 10 September last year. After that, We had got strong support from many people, form the Chinese community, the University, the Law school, Modern Languages, and many Local people. Specially she'd like to thank Mr Andrew Lui, Ms Fang from the North Wales Chinese School, their teachers, students and their parents. Dr. Wei Shi, Director of the Institute, Dermot, Dean of the Law school, for the significant expansion of office space, newsletters, and other work, Bill and Nerys, for the financial affairs, Ying Yan, for Chinese Teaching, Chao Ji, for her efficient and professional administrative work, Clive Jones and his team, for their work of office renovation, and of course, strong support from the Vice-Chancellor, Professor John G Hughes and Dr Wu. She also thanked local primary and middle school headmasters and teachers, local business men, artists, and volunteers from the Chinese Students and Scholars Association (CSSA) in Bangor University, who had been dedicated to help the activities organized by Confucius Institute. Finally Professor Zhang wished everyone a happy Chinese new year on behalf of Confucius Institute Headquarter and China University of Political Science and Law, the Chinese partner university of Confucius Institute at Bangor University.

After the distinguished guests' addresses, students from Bangor University and North Wales Chinese School began to perform. Their performances of Chinese martial arts, hip-hop, Chinese zither and songs got cheers from time to time. Chinese School students performed in Chinese. Some of them were of Chinese descent, but were born in UK, therefore it was rather difficult for them to study Chinese. When they read poetry in pure Mandarin, all the audience applauded. Chinese buffet started at the same time of performance, after which there was a raffle, and more than 60 prizes were drawn out. There was also a charity auction of flowers at the end of party. The Chinese New Year Party ended in a peaceful atmosphere.

- 1,2, MP Bryn Hughes, the Mayor of Bangor delivering a speech and greeting a “Happy Chinese New Year” and “Good Luck in the Year of Snake” in Chinese! MP Bryn Hughes is learning “Happy New Year” in Mandarin from Ms Yan Li, Chinese teacher from Confucius Institute.
- 3, Professor Dermot Cahill, Head of the Law School at Bangor University making a speech on behalf of Bangor University and promoting actively the events run by Confucius Institute.
- 4, Dr. Wei Shi, couldn't help recalling his PhD time at Cambridge in his speech.
- 5, Prof. Living Zhang, expressed her thanks to the parties who had supported Confucius

- 6, Decorated the stage.
- 7, Mr. Andrew Lui, Headteacher of North Wales Chinese School, delivering a speech and greeting a “Happy Chinese New Year”
- 8, Sword performance by a Bangor University student.
- 9, Poetry reading in Chinese by two British students studying Chinese.
- 10, Prof. Zhang, Mr Ryhs Howard Huges, Cae Top School, Miss Ann Parkinson, Headmaster of St. Gerard's School, and her colleague.
- 11, Bangor University students' performances won the applause of the entire audience.
- 12, Chinese buffet during the party.

Chinese New Year Activities on 5th February in Mochdre Infants School in Colwyn Bay

Students with Chinese elements in hand, such as the Spring Couplets, Chinese national flags, Chinese knots, red lantern, panda, character "fu" and even the Labor Newspaper from China.

By Liying Zhang and Yan Li

On 29th January 2013, recommended by Dr. Wu, Director of International Department, Ms Natalie Williams from Mochdre Infants School came to the Confucius Institute at Bangor University accompanied by Dr. Wei Shi, Director of the Confucius Institute to have a discussion with Prof. Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Confucius on the China Week activities. Their discussion gave many pointers to how Bangor's Confucius Institute could inform Mochdre's young people effectively about China and Chinese New Year,

On 5th February, Natalie picked up Prof. Liying Zhang and Ms Yan Li at Bangor and drove to Mochdre Infants School in Colwyn Bay. Prof. Zhang explained how Chinese people celebrate the Spring Festival in China, with a Powerpoint presentation. When it came to how to 'pay the New Year call', Natalie showed the men's gesture, while Prof. Zhang showed the women's gesture. Some boys and girls were taught to imitate the gestures. Then Prof. Zhang made an introduced the red packet. In China, during the Spring Festival, juniors will greet seniors, while seniors will give juniors some gift money to wish them safety in the coming year. The students who paid New Year's calls to Prof. Zhang all got red packets. Prof. Zhang then began to introduce Chinese money and the differences between Chinese and British counting gestures. Later Prof. Zhang told the young people about the Spring Festival, symbolizing the the end of the old lunar, year, with a new lunar year, the Year of the Snake, having begun.. Prof. Zhang asked the young people what their animal signs were. The twelve Zodiac Animals, called 12 Shuxiang, is a popular way of counting one's age in China. They are rat, ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and boar. All of them are male animals, because female animals often have bad meaning, like greedy pig, and cow means a horrible or rude woman. The year, in which one is born, corresponds to one of the 12 Zodiac Animals. So, the Zodiac Animal is a person's Shuxiang.

The Spring Couplet, also called "Couplet", is a special form of literature in China. To paste the Spring Couplet is one of the Chinese Spring Festival customs. Prof. Zhang kindly asked the kids where the Spring Couplet should be pasted. Some answered 'on the wall', 'on the window' said others. The young person with the correct answer (i.e. on the door) got a Chinese knot as a prize.

Prof. Zhang also introduced jiaozi. On New Year's Eve, the whole family will sit together to make jiaozi and celebrate the Spring Festival. The shape of jiaozi is like gold ingot from ancient China. The tradition of having jiaozi is very important, even essential, during the Spring Festival. Chinese people eat jiaozi with chopsticks which Prof. Zhang taught the students how to use.. In the chopsticks game, the young person who successfully picked up a chess piece with chopsticks got a Chinese national flag as a prize.

After introducing Chinese New Year Activities, pointing to a world map, Prof. Zhang asked the young people where China was. Many raised their hands, and the one who answered correctly got a Chinese national flag. The next question was about the Capital of China, with four options including Shanghai, Beijing, Guangzhou and Xi'an. Finally, a correct answer was given after two failure,

Then Prof. Zhang asked which animal could only be found in China? “Panda!” A kid answered quickly. “How tiny is a new-born panda?” All the kids gesticulated and were shocked when they saw the real tiny new-born panda in the picture.

“Which opera is most famous in China?” The last question was quite difficult for such small young people, so Prof. Zhang gave them a hint saying that the most famous opera in China was related with the city of 2008 Olympic Games. One guessed “Peking Opera” and got the biggest prize of a 3D 2013 calendar.

After a short rest, all the students and teachers went to the hall. Some students performed the Dragon Dance for Prof. Zhang and Ms Li, and Prof. Zhang played a Taiji sword accompanying them. After that Prof. Zhang taught the kids Taiji and Chinese Kungfu. With the punches of Changquan, the kids roared loudly.

The half-day activities consisted of culture and motion. After Taiji and Chinese Kungfu, the kids went back to the classroom to learn to play Chinese chess, making red lanterns, using chopsticks, writing Chinese characters and speaking Chinese. At the end, all the students took a group photo with Chinese elements in hand, such as Chinese national flags, Chinese knots, Chinese newspaper, Chinese handkerchiefs, panda dolls and the Spring Couplets.

After the activities, all the young people said “thank you” three times in Welsh and gave Welsh Daffodils to Prof. Zhang and Ms Li.

A week later, Prof. Zhang and Ms Li received several letter of thanks letters from the young people . There were Chinese characters “谢谢您” (thank you) written by the kids, some signatures and a painting of a little kid with a Chinese national flag on the cover of the letters. The contents of the letters were moving, mentioning all the Prof. Zhang’s and Ms Li’s activities, and ‘hoped they would come again’:

“Thank you for coming to show us about Chinese New Year and the year of the snake. I have a great time! Love from Reran”

“Thank you for teaching us Taiji. Thank you for coming. We had a lovely time. My favorite part of the day was watching you with the sword. Thank you for teaching us Chinese numbers. Please come again. Love from Callum”

“Thank you for teaching me how to play Chinese chess. Thank you for teaching us Taiji. I loved yesterday. I liked the book made out of bamboo. I liked the decorations. Thank you for the presents. I liked the paper cutting. I liked you helping us use chopsticks. I liked us showing you our Dragon Dancing. Love from Leah”

“Thank you for teaching us Taiji and Chinese chess and teaching us about pandas. Thank you for the presents. I enjoyed it. Thank you for teaching us paper cutting and teaching us where Beijing is. Thank you for coming. Love from Hannah”

Great thanks to Natalie. The activities would not have been so successful without her organization and help.

A short piece of the letter from David to Dr. Wu, Director of International Department

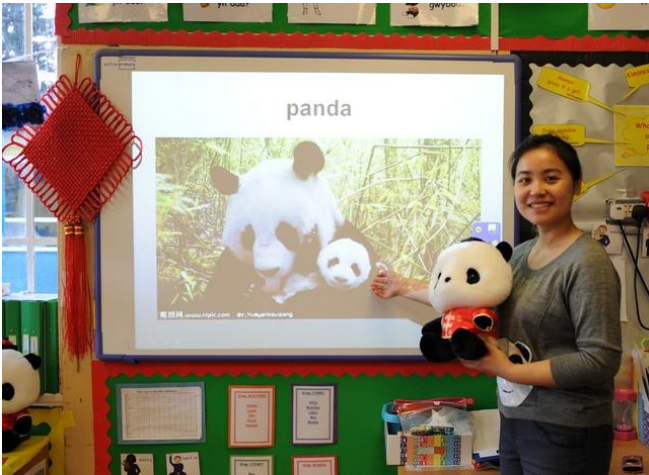

“PS Natalie has shown me some letters that her pupils have written to Liying. She is forwarding them by post to Bangor today. They are really lovely letters and show how much the visit by Liying was valued by the kids.”

Natalie and Prof. Zhang teaching the kids the different gestures of paying New Year’s call by men and women.

During the Spring Festival in china juniors will greet seniors, while seniors will give juniors some gift money as a wish for their safety in the coming year. Prof. Zhang is giving red packets to the kids who have paid New Year’s calls to her. The students opened the red packets and saw the Chinese money, and Prof. Zhang taught the students to distinguish the Chinese money.

1, Prof. Zhang asking where China is? A student raised his hand actively and pointed out the position of China on the map correctly.

2, Teaching the student how to use chopsticks.

3, Teaching the student how to make a lantern.

4, Prof. Zhang asked, “Which animal can only be found in China?” “Panda!” The student s answered quickly and correctly. Ms Li with a panda in hand had just arrived in UK for 3 days from China. Although still suffering from the jet lag, she was conscientiously teaching the kids with full spirit. Prof. Zhang then asked, “How tiny is a new-born panda?” All the kids gesticulated and were shocked when they saw the real tiny new-born panda in the picture.

5, Ms Li teaching the kids how to play Chinese chess. Christoffer, the boy on the left side of Ms Li, was said by the teacher that it was hard for him to concentrate for more than 2 minutes, but he had concentrated on the activities the whole morning that day.

6, “Which opera is most famous in China?” The last question was quite difficult for such little kids, so Prof. Zhang gave them a hint saying that the most famous opera in China was related with the city of 2008 Olympic Games. A kid guessed “Peking Opera” and got the biggest prize of a 3D 2013 calendar.

7, Some student s performing Dragon Dance for Prof. Zhang and Ms Li, and Prof. Zhang playing Taiji sword to accompany them.

1, Teaching Taiji.

2, Teaching Chinese Kungfu.

3, Students loved to take photos with pandas best. Ms Li, Prof. Zhang, Natalie and the students.

4, Students were very interested in Chinese. They learned quickly and pronounced well.

5, After the activities, all the Students said “thank you” three times in Welsh. Some students came around Prof. Zhang and hugged her for a long time, which almost brought Prof. Zhang to tears.

6, A week later, Prof. Zhang and Ms Li received the thanks letters from the kids. There were Chinese characters “谢谢您” (thank you) written by the students, some signatures and a painting of a little student with a Chinese national flag on the cover of the letters. The contents of the letters were moving. The kids mentioned all the activities Prof. Zhang and Ms Li had done, and hoped they would come again.

Careers Day activity

Ice breaker activity organized by Ms Anne Maund

New Year's Eve activities at Confucius Institute, Bangor University

By Liying Zhang and Yan Li

February 9th was the Chinese New Year's Eve, and a series of activities were organized by Confucius Institute at Bangor University on that day.

On the afternoon of February 9th, Confucius Institute and ESF FUNDED PROJECT held a Careers Day activity in cooperation. At first, participants began to know each other through Ms Anne Maund's "Ice breaker" activity. Following that Dr. Haider Ramadhan and Mr. Stephen Maund talked about life planning and job selection. Then Ms Anne Maund let everyone play a role in the Career path workshop to get the interview experience. Prof. Liying Zhang also played the role of the interviewer.

In the film screening room of Confucius Institute, Chinese Spring Festival Gala live webcast was going on at the same time. Chinese friends felt the warmth at home, while foreign friends got an understanding of how Chinese people celebrate the Chinese Spring Festival.

There was also an activity of making dumplings in the Confucius Institute's kitchen. The first step of making dumplings was to make the stuffing. Several foreign students studying Chinese learned how to chop the stuffing, how to make dumplings and how to boil dumplings. Dr. Wei Shi, Director of Confucius Institute, Professor Liying Zhang, Co-Director of the Institute, and Ms Yan Li, Chinese teacher from Confucius Institute kept questioning the students about dumplings in the process of making them, and students with the correct answers got a prize of Chinese paper-cut calendar provided by Confucius Institute Headquarter.

From left to right: Ms Anne Maund, Mr. Stephen Maund, Ms Beata, Prof. Liying Zhang, Dr. Haider Ramadhan and his wife.

Dr. Haider Ramadhan was delivering a speech.

The Careers Day activity ended in the New Year atmosphere, followed by making dumplings and eating dumplings.

1, Chinese Spring Festival Gala live webcast was going on at the same time.

2, Making dumplings together.

3, Questioning while making dumplings.

Students with the correct answers got a prize of Chinese paper-cut calendar provided by Confucius Institute Headquarters.

CONFUCIUS INSTITUTE AT BANGOR UNIVERSITY

Lion dance by Mr. Andrew Lui's team on 14th February 2013.

Contact Details:
Tel: 01248 388555

Email: Confuciusinstitute@bangor.ac.uk
Web: www.bangor.ac.uk/confucius-institute

Address:

Confucius Institute at Bangor University
9th Floor Chemistry Tower
(Alun Roberts Building)
Bangor Gwynedd LL57 2UW, UK